Welcome to the December 2017 Edition of "On the Move"

Resolve to Make 2018 a Year of Better Commuting

This time of the year everyone is making new year's resolutions. Some of the top resolutions include: getting healthier, enjoying life to it's fullest, spending less and saving more, and learning something new.

During your commute you can make every minute count by establishing behaviors that will set you up for success. Here are some ideas for making the most of your time while checking some of those resolutions off your list.

- Get Organized. Getting organized is often the first step of recognizing where you need to change. Use your commuting time to plan out your personal and professional calendars.
- Develop a Budget. Once your time is organized, spend some time developing a budget. Organize your expenses. Think about your financial goals and develop a plan to achieve them.

- Avoid Time Wasters. Don't spend all your commuting time mindlessly scrolling through social media, playing games, or watching videos on your phone. Instead, you can use this time working towards achieving your goals.
- Menu Plan. One of the most important actions you can take to get healthier is to think about what you are going to eat. Use your commute time to plan out your meals for the week, upload digital coupons, or compare competitor's prices.
- Learn something new. There are countless podcasts, articles, and books you can read to learn something new while commuting. Imagine all you can learn about one subject by spending one hour a day reading about it.
- Get rid of digital clutter. Do you have over 5,000 emails in your inbox? Do you have multiple email accounts? Use your commute time to clean out your inbox and unsubscribe to lists that are no longer relevant to you.
- Eliminate Stress. By simply commuting in a vanpool you are eliminating the stress of longer travel times. You can use the time during your commute for reflection, rest, and renewal.
