

"A Customer First Company" September 2013

Welcome to the September 2013 Edition of "On the Move"

Navy Yard Tragedy

Our hearts go out to all of those impacted by the recent shootings at the Washington Navy Yard. Just like our entire nation, we are deeply saddened by the events that took place. Our prayers are with the families and all those touched by this tragedy.

We appreciate all of you that expressed concern over the safety and welfare of fellow riders. We also thank those coordinators that went out of their way to communicate availability on their vans for those needing a ride home. We appreciate your thoughtfulness and support.

Meet Those behind the Scenes at K&K

For the next couple of months we would like to highlight those people that work behind the scenes at K&K. This month we would like to introduce Gene and Onika Williams.

Both Gene and Onika have worked with K&K for over 7 years. Currently, Gene maintains the K&K website and Onika writes the monthly newsletter. They consider it a privilege to work with such an outstanding group of people.

Kings Dominion Express is Still Available for October

The transit system announced that, for the first time, the 102x Kings Dominion Express service will provide service through October. Starting Saturday, September 14, 2013, GRTC will operate a special weekend service thru Sunday, October 27, 2013. This will provide public transit to the Kings Dominion annual Halloween Haunt event.

Passengers will be able to board the 102x Kings Dominion Express at all Westbound bus stops on Broad Street between 12th and Belvidere for express service directly to Kings Dominion.

The fare remains the same. For only $5.00 per trip, visitors will save wear and tear on their cars, avoid the high cost of gas and parking, and let someone else do the driving when they visit the Halloween Haunt at Kings Dominion, a great destination for family fun.

For detailed route and schedule information, visit www.ridegrtc.com or call GRTC Customer Service Center at 804-358-GRTC (4782).

More Cameras Are Coming to the District

Over the next few months, officials are planning to increase the number of traffic enforcement cameras on city streets — adding 132 units. This more than doubles the amount of cameras already on the streets. This move marks the largest rise in camera use since the District first implemented this program more than a decade ago.

In addition to catching speeders and motorists that run red lights, these cameras will target a broader range of traffic violations. These additional violations include drivers who run stop signs, those encroaching on pedestrian crosswalks, and truckers who drive overweight trucks through neighborhoods where they are prohibited.

With this new project the District will have a total of 223 cameras placed throughout the area. District officials say that the cameras have made roadways and school zones safer. A study by the Insurance Institute for Highway Safety of red-light camera use in cities reports that there has been a 24 percent decrease in fatal crashes caused by running red lights. This study also found a 17 percent decrease in fatal intersection crashes.

As with other cameras the District will make known their locations. In addition, there are plans for an education program to be implemented along with the camera expansion.
